EXPERIENCE

● Bootcamp Projects

UNIVERSITY OF ARIZONA

From - Until

I was responsible for creating well-thought-out web apps and programs. During my time I was able to acquire knowledge in a variety of areas in the process of web development. I was responsible for working in an individual setting as well as a group setting. I was confronted with many challenges, from building a fully functional password generator to building an autonomous robotic car that could find its way out of any maze. However, one of the most valuable things I got out of these challenges was mastering the art of being an independent problem solver and how to find the solution to any challenge thrown at me.
